About the Ritz

The Ritz Theatre has been the pride of Wellington and Collingsworth County since it opened in 1928 with “talking” movies and live stage performances. The theater closed in the early 1980s, but local preservationists began the process of saving the building in 2001. After a complete restoration and expansion, the nonprofit Wellington Ritz Theatre, Inc. reopened the Ritz in 2007. Since that time, thousands of people have enjoyed first-run movies and a wide array of live performances from well-known country and bluegrass artists to opera and symphonic orchestras. The Ritz also serves the school children of Wellington and surrounding towns through cultural enrichment activities. Almost 100 years after it was built, the Ritz is still one of the finest theaters in the region.

None of this would be possible without your support, patronage, memberships and donations.
